Levees here ready for record flood

Greathouse remains optimistic

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

After inspecting about 100 miles of levees Monday, Shang Greathouse, president of the Metro East Sanitary District, said he feels optimistic that the area will "sweat out" the current record flooding safely.

"There are no levee slides and no seepage that you get when levees are getting ready to give way," Greathouse said.

"I found one gravity drain that someone had forgotten to shut, but that's taken care of now and things look pretty good."

Greathouse said that on Sunday and Monday the district put in eight more flood gates that should keep the area protected unless the Mississippi River goes higher than 46.7 feet.

"We've got six more flood gates that we'll put in at 45 feet and that will bring us up to 49 feet," Greathouse said.

"If it goes higher than that, somebody is probably going to get wet."

The Mississippi River was at 43 feet Monday afternoon — 13

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers forecast called for the river to rise to 43.2 feet Tuesday, 43.5 feet today and 44 feet Thursday before finally cresting at 45 feet on Sunday.

But continued rain north of here this week may add to the crest, authorities said.

Greathouse said the ground on the "dry side" of the levees is "just like walking on a sponge as the groundwater percolates up."

But, he said, "I know it's bad luck to say it, but it looks like we've won the battle. Now, it's just a matter of sweating it out day by day."

"The only thing that's looking bad now is our pocketbook."

Each gate costs between $10,000 and $12,000 to install, Greathouse said.

He said the five big pump stations are costing between $37,000 and $40,000 a month in electric bills. Nine other pump stations cost about one third as much to run, he said.

All 14 pump stations have entered their fifth month of continuous operation.

Greathouse said he is hoping that the district will be able to be reimbursed by the federal government for some of the costs caused by the flooding.

"But sometimes it seems the only way we can get reimbursed is if we have a disaster," he said. "That's a heck of a way of raising money."

The high river has caused some back-pressure problems in gravity drains, Greathouse said, but so far the drains have held.

He said four of the drains on Front Street in East St. Louis had been leaking from the pressure, but that all four have now been successfully sealed.

"About the only thing that could get us now is a major rain over a short period," Greathouse said.

"If we got a lot of water coming down the ditches all at once, there could be trouble. But right now the weatherman says that's Grinning from ear-to-ear, the 9-year-old Edwardsville girl eagerly demonstrates her skills with the baton, tossing it up in the air, letting it hit the ground and dancing back to its landing spot.

As a member of the Shooting Stars Drill Team, sponsored by the American Legion Post 199 in Edwardsville, Melissa gets ample opportunities to show off her twirling abilities.

She's also a member of the team's flag corps, though she readily admits she likes handling the baton much better.

Venice police rescue dogcatcher

Quick-acting Venice police officers saved the city's dogcatcher from an attack by a vicious dog last week when one of the officers shot the dog dead.

Two officers were dispatched to the city pound at 8:27 p.m. July 8 and found Grady Reynolds, the city's humane officer, being chased by a 60- to 70-pound mixed-breed dog, police said.

Reynolds jumped into his truck to avoid the attack, and the dog then ran at one of the officers, according to a police report.

The officer yelled at the animal in an attempt to scare it

One person was killed and two others were injured Saturday when a dump truck lost control and skidded into a van outside Granite City.

Demosethes G. Pappas, 59, of the 4400 block of Lindell in St. Louis was pronounced dead at 8:38 p.m. Saturday at Wood River Township Hospital.

Pappas was in the passenger seat of a Dodge Minivan driven by his wife, Ethelyn, north on Illinois Route 3 about a half-mile north of Interstate 270 when the car was struck head-on by a Tandem dump truck driven by Frederick E. Dunevant II.

Dunevant was southbound on Route 3 about 2 p.m. when the truck crossed over the grassy center median, rolled over and skidded into the van, said Chief Coroner's Investigator Ralph Baahmann Jr.

Dunevant, 26, of the 600 block of Union Avenue in Belleville, was taken by helicopter to St. Louis University Hospital with serious injuries, Baahmann said.

Ethelyn Pappas, 60, was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Granite City, for minor injuries.

Dunevant was ticketed by Illinois State Police for faulty equipment. A blown tire is blamed for the wreck, Baahmann said.

The truck was filled with dirt.

Local officer aids in fugitive arrests

By Bob Late
Staff writer

A Granite City police officer played a key role in a recently completed national fugitive-apprehension operation.

The operation was conducted by the U.S. Marshall's Office, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Sgt. John Apperson of the Granite City Police Department was assigned for four weeks to "Operation Trident," a nine-week program in 37 principal cities across the country.

It was designed to remove fugitives with violent or drug-related criminal histories from the streets.

Nationwide, the operation resulted in the arrest of 963 federal fugitives as well as 4,825 individuals who face state or local charges.

Locally, members of the Southern District of Illinois U.S. Marshall's Service as well as Apperson and deputies from the St. Clair County and Madison County sheriff's departments participated.

Officers assigned to Operation Trident were allowed to completely focus their efforts on apprehending the fugitives rather than distributing their work efforts among their normal responsibilities, Chief Deputy U.S. Marshall Larry Carter said.

The local operation was conducted June 1-25 and consisted of three teams of three officers each.

The local task force arrested and cleared 125 existing warrants for fugitives, some dating back to the 1980s, Carter said.

The local task force investigated and arrested fugitives wanted for violent crimes such as murder, assault, sex offenses and gang violence; and for narcotics, weapons violations and burglary.

"Of those arrested, 55 percent were still in jail Thursday, Carter said.

Carter had high praise for Apperson. "Sgt. Apperson did an outstanding job. He is very effective — one of the best guys we had," Carter said.

In addition to three fugitives arrested in Granite City, one of whom was wanted for a charge of aggravated criminal sexual abuse, Apperson helped apprehend about 40 other fugitives in Madison and St. Clair counties in a four-week period.

"He is a very talented officer," Carter said.

Participation by local law enforcement officers was a key to the success of the operation, according to U.S. Marshall Donald R. Brookshier.

"Federal, state and local agencies committed experienced law enforcement officers and those officers brought with them valuable knowledge of the community and its criminal element," Brookshier said.

Local law enforcement officers received a "special deputization" from the Marshall's Office, and deputy marshals were likewise specially deputized by the participating sheriff's departments.

The special deputization allowed officers to exercise arrest powers outside of their normal jurisdictional boundaries.

For example, a fugitive wanted in St. Clair County for sodomy and

Gore visits area, promises U.S. help

Vice President sees damage in Lemay

By Kevin Carberry
Staff writer

Flood-plagued Lemay drew national attention when Vice President Al Gore visited Monday afternoon to inspect the disaster area.

Gore saw firsthand the water that had burst over yards and into homes along Military Road as he and a contingent of area politicians inspected the flood.

"I've looked at quite a few different areas now and I don't think there has been anything more touching than seeing the levee that people spent a week of having worked on and, then, the levee broke," Gore said of the Lemay situation.

"We are going to have a strong, effective, coordinated response. We are determined to do the job here."

Gore, who flew to Lemay by helicopter after visiting another flooded area, Grafton, Ill., said President Bill Clinton, now visiting the Orient, has been informed about the devastation the flood has caused throughout the Midwest.

During his visit of about 30 minutes, Gore chatted and shook hands with Lemay residents as he surveyed the damage. Residents on hand for Gore's visit had mixed reactions to the impact it would have on helping the area.

"It's good for him to have the attention drawn on the area," said Tina Berkuegler of south St. Louis. "I'm concerned about the flood and interested about it. Me and my husband and child donated for the flood out at South County Center."

Linda LaPresto of Lemay said she wants to see the government get involved in assisting the flood victims.

"I'd like to see the government help these people — at least give them something to start over."

Others who came to see Gore were not thrilled with his stay.

"The way he came through here — it was a joke," said John Burnett, who said his Lemay house has suffered severe flood damage. "I'm looking for a buy-out."

"They'll spend money to rebuild the houses and, then, the water will just come back," Tammy Risley of Lemay, who also has a

Flood hotline open

The American Red Cross Flood Relief Hotline is now being staffed 24 hours a day.

People affected by flooding who need information on how to get Red Cross help can call 1-800-950-HELPER (4357).

Currently, the Red Cross is focusing efforts on setting up shelter facilities and serving meals to the thousands of evacuees. Twenty shelters are open and this number is expected to increase as more areas flood and people in already flooded areas seek out Red Cross assistance.

Individuals wanting information on the status of the flooding and sandbagging efforts and evacuations should not call this number, a spokesman said. Local police and sheriffs should be called.

The Salvation Army has set up its third and fourth shelters for flood victims, and the two newest ones are in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

Flood victims may call 1-800-288-6861 for information about the shelters and Salvation Army feeding centers.

Grafton residents appeal for help

Grafton residents waded through deep water Monday to appeal to Vice President Al Gore for federal flood disaster aid.

"Help. Send us some help. That's what we'll tell the vice president," said Carol Wallace, who lives on flooded Water Street.

Gore, along with other national and state dignitaries, came to the St. Louis area to inspect damage from one of the worst floods in history.

"The national spotlight will be on Grafton today," Paul Arnold, the town's flood disaster coordinator, said earlier Monday.

U.S. Secret Service agents were boating through flooded streets Monday morning, preparing for Gore's visit.

CBS anchorman Dan Rather and NBC anchor Tom Brokaw did live telecasts from Grafton Monday night.

Gore saw the second highest floodwater in history at Grafton. The Illinois and Mississippi rivers hit 32.2 feet Monday in Grafton, a foot lower than the 1973 record of 33.2 feet.

Mayor Gerald "Windy" Nairn said that 700 of the city's 850 people have moved to higher ground.

"We're expecting the high water to reach 34 feet in Grafton Saturday, breaking the 1973 record," said David Basse of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Sandbagging continued down river at Elsie.

The volunteers were trying to save a number of antebellum houses in the old river port. The oldest of the threatened buildings, the Riverview House, was built in 1848.

At Melvin Price Lock and Dam, the Mississippi hovered around 35.8 feet Monday, the same as Sunday. "It's a temporary lull at the Alton dam," David Basse of the U.S. Corps of Engineers said. "More rainwater is rolling down the river."

Thousands of sightseers streamed through Alton Sunday to catch a glimpse of the flooding Mississippi.

In West Alton are assisting a handful of residents left in the village as floodwaters continue to rise.

Salvage Army Envoy Bill Miller, commander of West Alton flood relief efforts, said workers are continuing food deliveries to remaining residents but can do little else until waters drop.

When waters recede health problems may rise

By Jim Rygelski
Staff writer

Few flood-related health problems have been reported, but local officials are bracing themselves for additional problems once the waters recede.

"That's clearly when there's a potential for health risks," said Dr. William Kincaid, director of health and hospitals for St. Louis.

"We'll be giving advice to people on how to clean out their homes before they re-enter them."

Kincaid said mosquito breeding in standing pools of water and problems with rats are among the problems the area could face after the swelled Mississippi, Missouri and Meramec rivers and the River Des Peres return to normal levels.

Dr. Linda Fisher, chief medical officer for St. Louis County, said Monday that her office had not received any reports of deaths or illnesses stemming from the overflowing of the local rivers. But she said the city and county health departments had begun an information-gathering network with local hospitals to better monitor the situation.

Fisher said her office would distribute information to county residents displaced by high water on what to do before getting back into their homes.

After originally encouraging shots to prevent Hepatitis A and tetanus in those who had even casual contact with floodwaters, local health officials over the weekend began saying that only those who had swallowed river water or been immersed in it should get shots.

The earlier emphasis on shots was because the area had experienced an earlier outbreak of Hepatitis A. But information from the Centers for Disease Control last weekend indicated that casual contact with floodwater might not cause problems and that local health officials had a two-week period after such contact to successfully immunize people, said Dr. Raana Pongstingl, director of the emergency department at St. Anthony's Medical Center. St. Anthony's had cooperated with the local health departments in administering shots last week.

"We are emphasizing flood, common sense, such as frequent hand-washing," Dr. Fisher said of the recommended procedures for not the answer.

Kincaid concurred, saying there was more concern about people falling in and drowning than there was over people getting infected from casual contact with it.

"I see no need for a mass immunization," he said.

Both Kincaid and Fisher said they thought the area's drinking-water filtration systems would escape the problems that have plagued some cities up river.

"Our drinking water is OK," Fischer said.

Real estate auction July 28

St. Clair County will be conducting a Surplus Real Estate Auction on July 28, at 7 p.m. on the fifth floor of the Courthouse. The county is selling properties acquired through the delinquent real estate tax program.

Catalogs containing the location, size, and description of the property are available for $6 each at the St. Clair County Clerk's Office on the second floor of the Courthouse.

Past auction sales have enabled thousands of citizens to purchase real estate for as little as $250.

The county encourages all prospective bidders to physically inspect and thoroughly review any parcel of real estate prior to purchase. Successful bidders will pay 20 percent of the purchase price (a minimum of $250) the night of the sale and have 90 days to pay the balance.

Seating is available beginning at 6:30 p.m. Bidders are encouraged to arrive early for admission to the sale.

Committees to decide fate of detention home

By Shay Wessol
Staff writer

Members of four Madison County board committees will meet Thursday to arrive at a final solution for problems plaguing the county detention home.

At Thursday's session, members of the buildings, finance, health institutions and judiciary committees are expected to decide whether to spend about $1 million from the county's general fund to repair the building and bring it up to state standards or to draft another referendum for the November ballot.

"They'll probably be getting two figures," said County Administrator Jim Monday. "One would be the bare-bones figure just to meet the state's standards and do the necessary repairs, and the second figure would bring the building up to a high level and make it last for another 10 to 15 years."

The exact figures have not been determined by AAI/Campbell Inc. of Collinsville, the firm hired to design the rehab project, Monday said.

The decision should go before the full county board at next Wednesday's regular meeting, Monday said.

The detention home, a correctional facility built in the 1960s to house the county's juvenile offenders, has been under fire from state officials for several years because of needed improvements to the roof and restroom facilities and because the building does not have a sprinkler system for fire prevention.

The facility also faces severe overcrowding.

County voters, by a 59 percent margin, nixed a proposed tax increase that was on the April ballot. The proposed temporary 2-cent-per-$100 assessed valuation tax would have financed $4 million in renovations to the existing building.

Many county board members now say they are wary of placing a referendum on the November ballot after voters rejected the first plan.

"I would rather have seen (the proposal) go on the ballot and pass, because that would mean the people were behind it," said William Aery of Godfrey. "But (spending general revenue funds) is a more practical plan. You can do that, or you can raise taxes." Jack Frandsen of Alhambra agreed. "The voters have already said no, they've spoken," he said. "The thing we've got to do is start cutting down and stop raising taxes."

Haine lauds records bill

SPRINGFIELD — Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine has praised Gov. Jim Edgar's approval of a bill that would require conviction records of child sex offenders to be permanent.

The current law allows those records to be expunged or sealed five years after the offense occurs.

There are few individuals in society today more contemptible than those who sexually assault and take advantage of children," Edgar said.

Haine said he thinks the new law is justified because sex offenders often repeat their crimes. Having permanent records will make it easier to keep track when making background checks for jobs dealing with children, he said.

Another bill signed recently by the governor received a less favorable review.

Legislation that would allow larger counties to convene two grand juries at the same time probably won't be needed in Madison County, Haine said.

The bill, effective Jan. 1, applies to counties with populations of at least 225,000, including this county.

Durbin offers his prescription for national health care plan

U.S. Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Springfield, has his own prescription for national health care.

At the Edwardsville Senior Citizens Center Thursday, he said he wants a plan that would maintain quality while lowering costs.

"What we are trying to do, on a federal level, is to change the current system. We do want to maintain the quality," he told people at the town hall meeting.

Durbin found agreement when he told his audience, "The present prescription drug price problem in this country is serious. They're raising prices on basic drugs, like Tylenol with codeine, year after year."

As a result, Durbin said, "people are ordering drugs by mail because it can save you money in the process."

We need a drug price review board, to suggest they (prescription drug companies) could lose their patent if prices soar too high."

He added that while mail-order prescriptions may seem a less expensive alternative, it is important to have a local drugstore in case of emergency.

One audience member, Mel Simpson of Edwardsville, found he had the same problem when he sought pain medication for an injury.

"I went to Walgreen's and they wanted $40 for eight tablets. Schwartz (Health Mart) wanted $44 and Kmart wanted $46 and a half," he said.

Durbin said people need to think about preventing illness, rather than only being concerned with health care when they're sick.

A pet project of Durbin's is to cut government subsidies of tobacco products.

With Durbin was Liz Clevinger of the Alton Social Security Administration Office.

"Social Security is not a retirement plan," she told the audience. "It's a social insurance plan designed to keep seniors off the poverty level."

Anyone with questions about Social Security may call the Alton office between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at 463-6568 or toll-free (800) 772-1213 between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Durbin's Edwardsville office may be reached at 692-1082 or call (800) 252-8463.

SIUE dental school reorganized

The Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees has approved plans to reorganize the School of Dental Medicine.

The reorganization, effective July 1, reduces the number of academic departments from seven to three. This change permits the reallocation of 27.9 hours per week of faculty time to teaching duties. In addition, university officials said the reduction in number of departments will result in reducing administrative costs by $120,000. These resources are to be reallocated to teaching and hiring of new faculty.

SIUE administrators said the reorganization will also permit greater curricular integration, particularly between the clinical sciences and the biomedical sciences, permitting traditional biomedical science sections to be aligned with the appropriate clinical science sections.

The current administrative structure includes the departments of Biomedical Sciences, Community Dentistry and Human Behavior, Diagnostic Specialties, Pediatric Dentistry and Orthodontics, Prosthodontics, Restorative Dentistry, and Surgical Specialties.

The reorganization plan will include: Department of Restorative Dentistry; Department of Growth, Development and Structure; and the Department of Applied Dental Medicine.

According to the plan, four chairmen affected by the change will be reassigned to full-time teaching positions, effective June 30.

University administrators said the reorganization plan will have no effect on currently enrolled students and residents. However, one building will be closed because of the reorganization, and the equipment from it distributed to the reorganized departments.

In other action, the board approved a modification of the family practice residency in dentistry certificate program. The recommendation calls for a moderate extension of the existing residency program.

Unwanted pets flood shelters

A flood of a different variety has struck the Madison County Humane Society.

The seasonal flow of abandoned and unwanted cats and dogs is causing concern for the Society.

Shelter officials attribute the problem to the season. While a shelter may be inundated with requests for kittens during the winter months, in the summer the opposite occurs.

Tamara Atchley, president of the Madison County Humane Society, which has a shelter on Illinois 143 in Edwardsville, said, "The summer months are bad, especially for kittens. We're taking all the animals we can, all we have room for."

Sharon Davis, a worker at the Humane Society, said summer is also time for diseases.

"It's just so hot, and there are so many people bringing in their animals. This is the really bad time of year for diseases. The heat and humidity incubates them and makes it so bad," she said.

Feline and canine distemper are the more common animal diseases in the summer, Davis said.

Shelter workers urge people to get animals vaccinated.

Booster shots prevent such diseases as feline leukemia and distemper. Feline leukemia is becoming as common as heartworms in dogs.

The key advice is to spay pets. For information on available animals, persons may call the Madison County Humane Society, 656-4405.

Not your typical picket fence

Recycled plastic used for construction

By Shay Weasol
Staff writer

The fence that Jack built isn't your typical white picket fence.

Instead, Madison County Board member Jack Frandsen of Alhambra stepped into the recycling age with a fence made partially of recycled plastic from milk jugs and soda bottles.

Frandsen, his son J.R. and a host of workers spent a recent weekend literally snapping together the stretch of fence at the family farm outside Alhambra. It was as simple as playing with Legos or Lincoln Logs.

"It's really easy," Frandsen said. "There's no hammer and no nails."

Arthur Trost of Trost Plastic in Maestown, a dealer in recycled plastic and vinyls said the recycled plastic, mixed with vinyl, looks like wood but is guaranteed to last 20 years without maintenance.

The company sells all styles of fences, gazebos and picnic tables made from the recycled material.

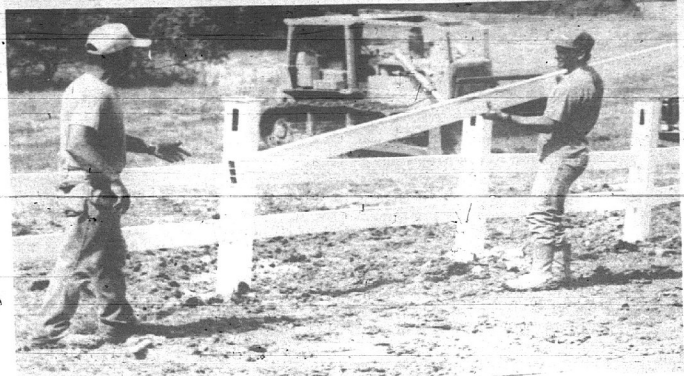

"Some of the lumber you get today will last three or four years before it starts rotting," Trost said. "In the long run, this is a lot cheaper than lumber."

The fencing currently costs about double the price of lumber, Trost said, but it will survive all types of weather and accidents.

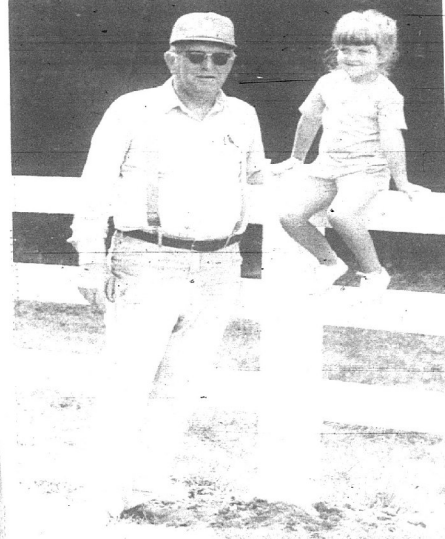

"There's enough flexibility in the fencing to withstand a tree crashing down on it, but you can still crawl across it, sit on it or whatever you want," Trost said.

The main selling point, for Frandsen and other customers, is the amount of time the recycled materials will save for farmers and homeowners.

"It's completely maintenance-free," Frandsen said. "I'll never have to worry about painting it or replacing the boards and posts like a wooden fence."

Charlie Wernle, left, a sub-contractor with Trost Plastics, and Tommy Frank of Alhambra, assemble the recycled plastic fence.

County board member Jack Frandsen and granddaughter Kara Frandsen, 4½, in front of the fence.

Benefit car wash July 24

The Granite City Campus chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, the student honor society at Belleville Area College, will hold a benefit car wash from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. July 24, at the Belleville Shell filling station.

Proceeds from the car wash will go to help Phi Theta Kappa develop Red Cross life saving and cardiopulmonary resuscitation training program.

Two members of the organization already are qualified Red Cross instructors.

The Granite City Campus chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, the National Honor Society for Community and Junior Colleges, is known as Alpha Kappa Rho.

The car wash will cost $3 for cars and $5 for trucks and vans.

Madison schools seek comments from public

The Madison School Board will hold its regular meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Middle School cafeteria.

Superintendent Dan Kostenki said that the board is interested in public comment on possible financial arrangements for the financially strapped district.

Possible funding sources which might be considered include a bond issue and a tax rate increase referendum in the fall, Kostenki said.

LEO SAYS, "It's time to check your shrubs for bagworms and your lawn for crabgrass. We recommend these quality products."

Ryan seeks license plate guidelines

Secretary of State George H. Ryan has called on his newly appointed License Plate Task Force to recommend policies for licensing the 8 million vehicles registered with his office.

"Some major questions have been raised over the past few years about the Illinois license plate," Ryan told the 20-member task force at its initial meeting recently in the state Capitol. "These aren't questions that should be answered in a piecemeal fashion because each of them has implications for the state treasury, law enforcement, traffic safety and other organizations."

"I'm looking to this group to hear those concerns and to develop comprehensive, wide-ranging policy that will create a framework for future decisions on license plates."

One of the key issues before the group will be whether the state should undertake a program to replace the license plate now on 6.3 million passenger cars registered in Illinois.

When originally created in 1984, the multi-year passenger car plate was designed for five years' use. By next year, however, nearly 20 percent of all passenger plates in use will be more than eight years old.

SIUE adopts guidelines for tightening budget belt for year

EDWARDSVILLE — Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville budget requests for the next fiscal year will reflect the state's continuing financial pinch.

Under guidelines adopted by the SIUE Board Thursday, the university will seek modest funding increases for the year beginning next July 1. The increases are designed to offset inflationary pressures and possibly provide a 3.5 percent pay hike for employees.

"Our employees and our institutions need something to deal with inflationary pressures," SIUE Chancellor James Brown said at a committee meeting before the board meeting.

SIUE officials hope the state's financial picture improves but won't depend on it, Brown said in an interview Wednesday.

"These are still hard times in Illinois," he said. The university will ask the state for $252.6 million for all its facilities, or $9.6 million more than Gov. Jim Edgar called for in his budget proposal for the current year. The current year's budget is still being debated in the Legislature.

The budget proposals include about $71 million for Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, $2.6 million more than Edgar's recommendation.

In addition to pay increases, the budget would cover estimated inflationary hikes of 3.5 percent.

The proposal would not provide for any program additions or enhancements.

In other action Thursday, the board established a new master of science degree program in accountancy in the SIUE School of Business effective the 1994-95 school year. The program requires no additional state funding.

The board also voted to terminate the following programs in an ongoing review of SIUE priorities:

Certificate programs in pediatrics, periodontology and prosthodontics at the School of Dental Medicine in Alton.

The masters of arts and science programs in political science.

The School of Education's bachelor of science degree in recreation.

The master of arts degree in philosophy and the specialization in women's studies.

The bachelor of science program in physical science education in the Schools of Education and Sciences.

The doctor of education program in instructional process in the School of Education.

Selective Service System to mark 50 years

Were you, or someone you know, involved with drafting men into military service during World War II? Perhaps you were a volunteer draft board member or an employee of the Selective Service System. Maybe you worked for a local draft board in the early 1940s?

If so, Uncle Sam wants you back but this time it's not to serve; it's to say "Thank You." That's right, the Selective Service System wants to recognize you as part of the events commemorating the 50th anniversary of the agency's role in World War II.

In connection with scores of official observances of the 50th Anniversary of World War II, Selective Service will honor those who served on the home front during those crucial years. This small federal agency which ran the World War II draft from October 1940 through the war's end is now searching for men and women who had any official connection with the Selective Service System during that period of time, but not the draftees themselves.

"Our search does not include the 10 million men who were drafted during the war, because of their distinguished service is being commemorated by the military and veterans groups. Instead, we're limiting our search to identify anybody still alive who worked for the Selective Service System itself, either as a volunteer or employee," explained Brig. Gen. Richard E. Northern, (Ret.), state director of Selective Service for Illinois.

Northern said that records showing who worked with Selective Service during the war were not kept. When identified, the agency's World War II volunteers and employees will receive letters of appreciation, commemorative posters, and distinguished Selective Service lapel pins.

If you think you qualify, contact Northern, by calling 217-22-8441; ext. 202, or by writing to: Illinois Veteran's Home, 1707 North 12th Street, Quincy, Ill. 62301. The agency would like to hear from you before July 31.

Although the last man to be drafted in the U.S. entered service 20 years ago, in June 1973, the Selective Service System is still charged with registering all young men once they turn 18 in case of a national emergency.

Student loan defaulters face collection efforts

Illinois student loan defaulters face possible loss of state tax refunds and lottery winnings under continued aggressive collection efforts by the Illinois Student Assistance Commission.

ISAC has already notified over 123,000 student loan defaulters that it is authorized to offset their state income tax refunds and lottery winnings. Through May 21 over $127,000 had been withheld in 1992 state tax refunds and a total of $10,000 had been received in lottery winnings.

These initiatives are just a few of the many methods that ISAC utilizes in the collection of defaulted student loans. Other efforts include matching ISAC loan records with various professional and/or licensing agencies to determine if defaulters or potential licensees are in default on student loans.

These agencies include: the

Edgar cites farm flooding

Gov. Jim Edgar has joined four other Midwestern governors in seeking Congressional approval of a measure to assist farmers facing heavy losses due to heavy rains. South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin sent a joint letter to U.S. Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy urging him to work with Congress to pass an economic program to mitigate agricultural losses throughout the region.

The governors noted the Upper Midwest has experienced eight consecutive months of above-normal precipitation and invited Espy to tour the rain-damaged areas.

"Farmers in the Midwest who either cannot get their crops planted or are losing yields for their crops due to flooded fields," the governors said in their letter.

"Farmers throughout Illinois have been affected by the wet weather, with the worst damage occurring in the northern and southern parts of the state."

"The rains have delayed or prevented planting in much of Illinois, slowed crop growth and caused many acres to need replanting," Edgar said.

"I have asked Agriculture Secretary Espy to support legislation that will limit affected farmers' losses."

The governors proposed the federal government provide payments to cover damage beyond the first 35 percent of losses for farmers with federal crop insurance and beyond the first 40 percent for those without insurance.

Crop insurance coverage for corn and soybeans generally decreases by 10 percent every five days after a specified planting date. On average, Illinois corn is about half as tall as it was at this time last year.

Only 89 percent of soybeans have been planted, compared with 99 percent one year ago. Wheat and oat maturity also lag far behind that of last year's crops.

The extent of the damage and the total number of acres affected in Illinois have not been determined.

Joining Illinois' Edgar in signing the letter were Gov. Terry Branstad of Iowa, Gov. Arne Carlson of Minnesota, Gov. Walter Miller of South Dakota and Gov. Tommy Thompson of Wisconsin.

Air quality report shows some progress

Illinois Environmental Protection Agency Director Mary A. Gade announced on July 2 the release of the 1992 Illinois Annual Air Quality Report.

The report is a summary of annual statistics for the six major pollutants monitored statewide. The six pollutants are ozone, particulate matter, sulfur dioxide, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide and lead.

Pollution levels were measured at more than 200 monitors statewide. Four of the major pollutants were either reduced or stayed the same. Ozone, carbon monoxide and sulfur dioxide had lower levels than in 1991 and lead levels averaged the same as 1991.

"We are encouraged by some of the achievements we have made in improving air quality," Gade said. "The agency is continually striving for the reduction of air pollution through the implementation of Clean Air Act programs, pollution prevention, and permitting and inspection efforts with Illinois industries."

The number of ozone exceedances in the state was reduced from nine in 1991 to three in 1992. This lower number of exceedances is a result of efforts to control emissions from industries and automobiles. Also, weather conditions are an important factor in these reductions.

Although ozone levels have shown some improvement, Illinois still has two areas that are named as nonattainment areas for ozone: the Chicago area (moderate) and the East St. Louis area (moderate). Continued efforts to reduce emissions are necessary before compliance with the ozone air quality standard can be achieved.

The statewide annual averages for particulate matter, carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide, and lead for 1992 were similar to the annual averages for 1991. Nitrogen dioxide had the only significant increase with a difference of 865 parts per million higher than in 1991.

Gade hopes that a new trading program for nitrogen oxide and other regulations in the Clean Air Act Amendments will help to reduce nitrogen dioxide emissions in the future.

While lead's maximum quarterly record was the same as 1991, since 1993 there has been a 75 percent lead level reduction in Illinois.

Edwardsville residents were not the only people to get a good deal at the annual Edwardsville Police Department auction last weekend.

The city has permanently loaned three stretchers and other emergency hardware for use at the new county morgue, a move that saved county taxpayers nearly $3,500, said Madison County coroner's chief investigator Ralph Baahlmann Jr.

We received about $3,500 worth of stretchers and other lab equipment that we certainly can use, but we wouldn't have had the money for it," Baahlmann said. "We're very, very appreciative."

A standard ambulance cost about $1,200 new, he said. "The cots are in excellent condition," Baahlmann said. "They've obviously taken very good care of them. We're delighted."

Edwardsville Mayor Gary Niebauer said the equipment would be put to "good use" by the coroner's office.

Basically, it was brought to perusal.

Simple organism causing food epidemic

Microbe called responsible for 150 deaths, 150,000 illnesses

One of the world's simplest organisms is creating a complex problem. The organism, a lethal, one-celled bug known to those who track it as Escherichia coli O157:H7, turned up in some fast-food hamburgers out in the Pacific Northwest early this year, sickening hundreds and killing three.

According to the federal Centers for Disease Control, that epidemic capped a deadly decade for the bacteria.

Center officials say the microbe has caused 150 deaths and 150,000 serious illnesses over the last 10 years, propping them to list tainted meat as the food supply's No. 1 health threat.

USDA Secretary Mike Espy has responded by calling for an overhaul in meat inspections, replacing see-and-smell methods with scientific techniques.

Industry representatives say the government's plan would affect every level of beef, pork and poultry production, processing and distribution.

If the plan goes through, it would mark the first major change in meat inspections since they began 85 years ago.

Some industry officials say it could greatly increase the cost of bringing food to the consumers.

The cause of all this commotion is a mutant strain of the rod-shaped, single-celled bacteria that usually play a helpful, though, minor, role in the human intestine.

Normally E. coli compete for food and space with pathogenic (disease-causing) organisms," says Douglas F. Pix, a Southern Illinois University at Carbondale microbiologist who uses E. coli bacteria to study how genetic mutations occur.

When they win, these bacteria help keep the other organisms from taking hold in the digestive tract and making folks sick.

E. coli O157:H7, however, is a good guy gone wrong. At its "best," it brings on vomiting and diarrhea.

At its worst, it can destroy blood cells, cause kidney failure, lead to strokes and produce heart attacks.

Scientists don't fully understand why bugs go bad, but both bacterial "sex" and "sickness" may play a role.

"In many cases, disease-causing traits are contained in plasmids, which are pieces of DNA," Pix said.

Plasmids, he explains, can be transferred between members of the same of different groups through conjugation, the equivalent of bacterial sex.

Traits passed on this way, for example, have allowed some bacteria to turn themselves into dominant bugs and others to resist antibiotics.

Viruses, a frequent source of sickness for humankind, also can infect bacteria. When they do, they sometimes alter them.

"As part of the viruses' replicative cycle, they pick up pieces of DNA, copy it and transfer it when they do to a new host," Pix said.

In this way, a harmless bug could pick up genetic instructions from a destructive one, becoming a new kind of bug in the process.

Scientists first spotted E. coli O157 back in 1985 but didn't connect it with health problems until 1992 when hamburger eaters in Oregon and Michigan fell sick.

Evolution — mutations that allow organisms to survive adversity by adapting to new conditions — could explain such acquired virulence, Pix said.

Or perhaps the bacteria haven't changed at all.

The "O157:H7" designation means that scientists are looking at only two characteristics in tracking these microbes. Other characteristics, present all along, but not yet recognized, may account for their poisonous effect.

"There could also be human factors involved," Pix said.

"More people are going to fast-food restaurants. Maybe fast-food places 'encourage' infections because of the way food is prepared. But it could be because of bad food itself."

All of which brings us back to inspection methods.

Inspectors now check carcasses for contamination by sight, touch and smell — a two-second process when it comes to poultry.

"We have to change a system not based on sight and touch but one based on microbiology," Espy said in calling for the overhaul.

The Ideal Environment for Foliage Houseplants from the experts at

FRANK'S® NURSERY & CRAFTS

Where Beautiful Things Begin

Last week we discussed the different lighting requirements for houseplants. Now it's time to delve into the environment... ideal living conditions for the plants in your home.

Most tropical foliage plants adapt to normal household temperatures. The word "normal" is debatable by many, however.

Some people are warm when it's 70° while others are freezing at 75°. But the plants can adapt, and many of them even benefit from a 5 to 10 degree reduction in temperature at night.

Try to avoid placing plants in areas where they may receive drafts. Many plants can be damaged if rapid temperature fluctuations of more than 20 degrees occur. Watch areas near doors, windows, heating and cooling vents, as well as appliances. Windows that are just fine for tropical plants in summer may be too cold in the winter.

Relative humidity is important too. A humidity level of 40 to 50% is preferred by most houseplants. Problems regarding humidity can pop up, as you may well know. Air conditioners reduce the humidity. All that dripping from it is the moisture in the air being removed. In the winter, low humidity is common and it's easily recognizable by the constant itching.

If you don't have air conditioning, you may consider purchasing a dehumidifier for your home. In the winter, a humidifier helps. There are other ways of increasing humidity, but who wants to talk about winter now? There's plenty of time before we have to worry about that!

ing Basics" for more information about soils and their properties. Here's something interesting: Most of the potting "soils" used for houseplants don't really have any soil in them at all. They're made up of combinations of peat, humus, perlite, vermiculite and sand. We call them potting soils simply for the sake of convenience, because everybody's used to it.

Your houseplants need to be fed regularly, especially when they're actively growing. Many types of plant foods are available. There are liquid and granular fertilizers that are dissolved in water. There are also solid stick fertilizers that are inserted into the soil. These dissolve a little each time the plant is watered.

An interesting project involving houseplants is the terrarium. That's a collection of plants in a clear container. They're very easy to make, and are perfect for the person who forgets to water every now and then.

The list of houseplants is almost endless. Stop by any Frank's, look them over, pick up the free literature, and enjoy! Houseplants are a real delight in any season.

Best summer's heat with cool selections. Salads are the enlightened cook's way to appeal to hot taste buds. Salads can go solo in a meal or boast a goal of sidestepping heavy, hot dishes like baked potatoes and steamy beans. These hot menu items stay cool on review, but do not mince flavor for comfort. Spinach salad has a seasoning as bold as Texas, chicken can be wrapped in creamy dressing with summer-fresh grapes and pea pods and mostaccioli is recognized as a significant salad with help from green pepper, onion, carrot and bacon. Not only is a salad appealing, but it is easy to serve using paper plates and plastic utensils. If the salad is headed to a picnic, plan to pack plenty of ice, as well as the required rackets, balls, bats, bikes and trikes. Always return leftover food immediately to the cooler to avoid food spoilage. For dessert, stay creamy and cool. Serve a ready-made frozen yogurt or have fun making your own. Be sure to have plenty of ice and rock salt available for successful ice cream making.

Frozen pina colada yogurt

- 8 cups vanilla yogurt
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 cans (15 1/2 oz. each) crushed pineapple, undrained
- 1 can (15 oz.) cream of coconut
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1 1/2 tsp. rum flavoring

Thoroughly combine yogurt and sugar in mixing bowl. Stir in pineapple, cream of coconut, whipping cream and rum flavoring. Refrigerate, covered, 30 minutes. Freeze in ice cream freezer according to manufacturer's directions. Makes 4 quarts.

Peaches 'n' cream dressing

- 1 lb. fresh peaches, sliced (about 1 1/2 cups)
- 1/2 cup plain yogurt
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- 1 tsp. honey
- 1/4 tsp. ginger

In blender, blend peaches, yogurt, lemon juice, honey and ginger until smooth. Cover. Refrigerate. Dressing keeps up to 3 days. Use as dressing or sauce for sliced fruit. Makes 1 1/2 cups, about twenty (1-tablespoon) servings.

Table Talk

Garden overflow time

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

The sun comes up over the garden area. Another day begins. After donning tie and jacket, the computer expert gathers bugs with green peppers and zucchini into the car along with new disks. Down the street a brace holds three recently harvested eggplants. X-rays being hand-delivered to the orthodontist arrive with a watermelon and enough tomatoes for a batch of spaghetti sauce. This is the dawn of Garden Overflow Time - 1993. At our house it was green beans. They are planted at the same time, grow to the same length and need to be picked at what seems to be the same minute to a 10-year-old. My mother insisted that we snap them to avoid losing the interior beans while canning them. It made our fingers feel as rubbery as the beans. The knowledge of how to cook green beans 55 ways was part of my trousseau when I married. The other garden commodity that didn't know when to quit was tomatoes, which we also canned in quantity. There always was plenty to add to noodles - we never called it pasta then - with plenty of flavor from only garlic powder and a little chopped celery. My dad never tired of my mother's hearty vegetable soup with its thin broth and tomatoes in winter. In summer it had the few pieces of okra that we would tolerate straight from the garden and corn cut off cobs that the bugs would leave. Every block has a zucchini zealot. The first time is an accident, but after that it must be on purpose. Once the vegetable becomes the perfect size, it grows secretly under cover of night at least 5 inches a day. Before zucchini became widely known, alphabetical recipe card files didn't even have a "Z" and now that section bulges. The Journal wants to hear how its readers cope at Garden Overflow Time. In several weeks we will gather and share those ideas, including recipes that make good use of the bonanza of fruit and vegetables that gardens leave for the well-intentioned folk who feed, tend and encourage them. The recipes will not be tested; we expect the people who copy them from the dog-eared originals do it carefully. What do you do with a plant of jalapeno pepper that does not take "No!" for an answer? Is there a good way to freeze eggplant? Where do you keep three bushels of apples when the temperature rises to 101 degrees? For that matter, why would anyone bother to pick up that many from the ground or dig the squirrel to pick tart summer apples? Send a note or recipe to: Table Talk - Gardens, Food Editor, Suburban Journals, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, 63131. Here are a couple answers to the tomato dilemma. The Fried Green Tomatoes recipe comes from the Florida Tomato Committee - with lots of obvious experience judging from the fields they cultivate. The Green Tomato-Apple Pie suggestion comes from Esther Cova, Affton, who suggests serving it with "Fried Green Tomatoes" plays on the home videocassette recorder.

Fried green tomatoes

- 4 large green tomatoes, sliced 1/2 inch thick
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 2 tbsp. bacon drippings or vegetable oil

Combine flour, sugar, salt and pepper. Lightly coat tomatoes on both sides with flour mixture. In large skillet, heat bacon drippings. Place tomatoes in skillet in single layer. Fry until brown on both sides. Remove to hot platter and repeat with remaining tomatoes, adding more bacon drippings if necessary. Makes 6 servings.

Green tomato-apple pie

- 2 cups skinned, quartered, thinly sliced green tomatoes
- 3 cups peeled, thinly sliced apple
- 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 2 tbsp. butter or margarine

Preheat oven to 425°. To peel tomatoes easily, place in boiling water 2 to 3 minutes until skins slip off easily. Combine tomatoes, apple, brown and granulated sugar, flour, cinnamon and salt. Place in 9-inch pie plate lined with 1 pastry crust. Dot with butter. Adjust top crust and flute edges. Cut vents for steam. Bake in preheated oven 50 to 60 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Winning dinners go for slaw the easy way

Marguerite Hornemann, 6403 Macklind Ave., is the winner of this week's recipe contest for Cold Slaw Salad. For it she wins a prize of dinner certificates at the Pasta House Company.

It uses ready-to-use shredded cabbage, almonds and sunflower seeds, both available in the bulk foods department of many supermarkets, and ramen noodles, a new staple on many pantry shelves. Mixing the dressing the night before makes easy serving. Recipes for the Summer Fruit Recipe Contest will be accepted through July 31 for consideration as winner each of the four weeks in August. The fruit can be used any way — in appetizer, salad, dessert, snack, beverage or main dish.

Send one recipe per household to Summer Fruit Recipe Contest, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, Mo. 63131. Type or print the recipe legibly on one side of the paper. Include name, address and telephone number on the entry. Name the Journal you receive.

Winner's Circle

Be sure to double-check the recipe as it is written for both amounts and directions, including any variations that make this dish special. If there is a history to the recipe, it will be considered part of the entry. It will be part of the basis for selecting winners, along with taste and eye appeal. Originality will be considered, although the recipe need not be original. If possible, name the source of the recipe. Winners are notified by mail. Duplicate entries will be considered on the basis of earlier entry or best compliance with the rules. Contest winners may enter again six months after their prize-winning publication date.

Chicken, other grilled foods are hot fare with summer flair

By Patricia Abels
Registered Dietitian
American Heart Association
St. Louis Chapter

"It's the season for lighting up the grill, kicking back and enjoying the sweet, uncomplicated flavor of grilled food. Grilling is a marvelous way to impart rich flavor — without the fat."

"The outdoor grill is perfect for entertaining," says Camille Appel, manager of consumer communications for McCormick/Schilling Division spices. "Foods taste great and can be healthier, too, if you substitute spices and seasonings for salt and use lean cuts of meat."

Appel, a barbecue aficionado herself, explains that good grilling begins with determining the cooking temperature of the grill.

I Love Eating

"Generally, high heat is the standard temperature for grilling, so don't shy away from cooking over hot coals. To adjust the cooking temperature, move the food either nearer to or farther from high heat," she says. "Testing the fire's heat is easy, according to Appel."

"Hold your hand palm-side down over coals, about where the food will be placed. Count the seconds you can hold your hand there. If you must remove your hand after two seconds, the coals are hot. If you can last three to four seconds, the coals are medium to medium-hot."

Appel offers her favorite tips for the smart barbecue cook:

- Sprinkle a handful of mixed herbs moistened with water over hot coals to add flavor to grilled foods.
- Brush cold grill with oil or spray with nonstick cooking spray to prevent food from sticking.
- To prevent burning, soak wooden or bamboo skewers in water 20 minutes before making kabobs.
- Avoid overcooking grilled foods, which dries out natural juices.
- Trim excess fat from meat to prevent flare-ups.
- Use tongs or spatula when handling meat. Piercing with fork allows delicious juices to escape and makes meat less moist.
- To prevent scorching, use tomato or sugar-based sauces only during the last 15 minutes of cooking.

- Soak hardwood or aromatic wood chips, like mesquite, then add to fire for smokier flavor.
- For a delicious turn to barbecued chicken, marinate it in a marinade with flavor inspiration from the Orient.

Oriental grilled chicken

Broiler method: Preheat broiler. Arrange chicken pieces on baking sheet. Place 5 inches away from heat. Broil 25 to 30 minutes, brushing pieces with marinade and turning frequently, until chicken is tender but not dry.

Create a harmonious evening by packing entertaining picnic

There is music in the air. Now that warm weather is here, musicians all over the country temporarily leave concert halls and bring their music out under the trees and the stars at local parks.

Whether the music is symphonic or rock, jazz or bluegrass, whether it is piped onto a park lawn or the patio in the back yard, a perfectly orchestrated picnic dinner makes the event memorable.

There is something about eating outside and dining with nature that makes even the simplest meal seem more special. That is especially nice because busy schedules preclude preparing elaborate repasts.

Turkey Tarragon Pitas make possible a spur-of-the-moment picnic after work. A quick tour of the supermarket garners a few items to go with staples already on hand.

From the deli counter, pick fully-cooked turkey products. To make these picnic pitas, for example, just mix together yogurt, mayonnaise and tarragon, then fold in some sliced grapes and fully-cooked turkey.

The deli section also offers pita bread and marinated vegetable salad. To round out the menu, pick up some cheese and a bottle of chardonnay. Ready-to-use lettuce and tomatoes come from the salad bar.

At home make the turkey filling and pack everything in separate self-closing plastic bags. Slip the turkey filling into a cooler, and within a matter of minutes, the cook and the picnic can be out the door again, this time

Quick Quisine

SSI may help pay medical costs of child born prematurely

By Bill Hunot
Social Security Administration

Q. We recently had a baby that was born prematurely. We have heard that Supplemental Security Income (SSI) might help us with some of our medical costs. Is this true?

A. SSI is cash assistance for people ages 65 or older, or blind or disabled. Your baby might qualify for SSI as a disabled child.

Premature babies with very low birth weight automatically meet Social Security's definition of disability until they are 1 year old. Premature infants weighing less than 1,200 grams (2 pounds, 10 ounces) at birth are considered disabled. Premature infants weighing between 1,200 and 2,000 grams (about 4 pounds, 6 ounces) at birth also are considered disabled if they have other serious medical problems.

SSI, because it is assistance, also has income and resource limits. Usually, the income and resources of a parent with a child who is disabled can qualify. However, many premature babies remain in the hospital after an extended period of time. SSI doesn't count parents' income and resources in determining a child's eligibility for payment until after the child goes home to live with his parents. That means even very affluent families may get assistance for their children while the children are in the hospital. And, of course, many children remain eligible for SSI after they return home, if their parents have limited income and resources.

For more information about SSI for children, call Social Security's toll-free telephone number, 1-800-772-1213.

Q. The Social Security employee that took my application for benefits told me that he could tell that I had worked for the railroad by looking at my Social Security number. What part of the number reveals the occupation of the number-holder?

A. From 1936 to 1963, the Railroad Retirement Board (RRB) issued Social Security numbers for their employees. RRB assigned numbers with the first three digits ranging from 700 to 723. There are no other clues to the occupation of a number in his or her Social Security number.

Q. I recently married, but I have not changed my name as far as my job is concerned. Do I have to let Social Security know that I married?

A. If you are not changing your name, Social Security probably is not interested in your marital status. The exception is if you are receiving certain kinds of Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits. Some benefits, such as benefits for children and young widows, are stopped when the widower or widow remarries. SSI payments are affected by marriage, because a spouse's income is considered available to the recipient. On the other hand, Social Security retirement benefits are not affected by marriage. Benefits for widows and widowers aren't affected, as long as the widower or widower remarries after age 60 (or age 50 if disabled) to remarry.

Q. Since I'm getting close to age 62, I wrote to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Jefferson City, Mo., to get a copy of my birth certificate. I was born in Crystal City, Mo. To my surprise, I found out that my birth record was not there. What do I do now? Should I get a delayed birth certificate?

A. While you might want a delayed birth certificate for other reasons, don't get just one for Social Security. (Note: A delayed birth certificate is one issued after age 5.) When birth records are recorded late in life, they don't have much value as evidence for Social Security purposes. Besides, there are other documents you can use to prove your age for Social Security. Your birth, like a baptismal certificate, cradle roll or birth record.

Religious records established before age 5 have the same evidential value as birth certificates. If you have no birth certificate or religious record, several other documents may suffice. Records from the military, schools and employers are acceptable. Check with Social Security at 1-800-772-1213 for further guidance.

Q. I applied for my Social Security disability benefits but was turned down. I was advised that I should appeal, but I don't know if it is worth the trouble. Won't it just deny me again?

A. There's no guarantee that an appeal decision will go your way, but it doesn't cost you anything to request an appeal. About 13 percent of disability claimants who are turned down at first are allowed benefits when they request a reconsideration (the first level of appeal). About 60 percent of people that request a second appeal (called "hearing") are awarded their benefits.

There are several reasons why so many cases are denied at first but are allowed on appeal. First, the appeal process can take several months and people's conditions tend to worsen over time. Second, the more severely impaired a person is, the more likely he or she will appeal. Third, the officials conducting hearings, administrative law judges (ALJs), use a different set of rules in making disability decisions.

The regulations used by ALJs are not as detailed and leave more room for judgment than the instructions that other disability decision-makers have to use.

Q. Does Social Security still pay a burial benefit? If so, how much is it?

A. Social Security still pays a lump sum death payment of $255. But the benefit must be made only if there is a surviving spouse who was living with the deceased at the time of his or her death, or a surviving spouse or child eligible for benefits on the deceased worker's Social Security record.

Q. Will disbursements from my Individual Retirement Account (IRA) affect the receipt of my Social Security benefits? I know that I can only make $7,500 a year.

A. Only wages and self-employment income count against the $7,500 earnings limit. Disbursements from an IRA or from a 401(k) plan, pensions, interest and dividends are examples of income that doesn't count against Social Security's earnings limits.

At Your Service: You can get a free copy of "The 1993 Medicare Handbook" by calling 1-800-772-1213 or writing to Social Security Administration, Public Affairs Office, 815 Olive, No. 50, St. Louis, Mo., 63101.

On July 3, 1965, amendments to the Social Security Act were signed by President Lyndon B. Johnson, establishing Medicare and lowering the eligibility age for widows to 60 from 62.

On July 3, 1975, the first automatic cost-of-living adjustment was added to Social Security checks.

In July 1957, Social Security's disability program was established. Address questions for Bill Hunot to West County Publications, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, Mo., 63131.

Junior Triplets snap 3-game losing skid

By Scott Wuerz
Correspondent

The Tri City Junior Triplets got back on the winning track this weekend, winning important match-ups with District 22 Joe Alton on Saturday and Bethalto on Sunday.

The Junior Triplets had struggled after streaking out to a 14-3 record, dropping three consecutive games. Coach Jerry McKeehan said, however, he was inspired to see his team come through in such an important game.

"WE'RE AT THE point of the season where everyone is trying to think ahead to the playoffs and we've gotten ahead of ourselves a little bit," McKeehan said. "We made a couple of physical mistakes and the other teams we've played were able to capitalize on them."

"But, what's important is no one got down and we were able to come through in a game which we really needed to win."

The Junior Triplets dueled with Alton for six innings in a 1-1 pitcher's battle before they were able to break through with a two-out rally.

John Reader singled to put the go-ahead run on base. Pitcher Ryan Stagman, who came on in relief of starter Jason Talley, was able to overcome a two-strike count to drive in the go-ahead run on a 317-foot run off the left field foul pole.

Stagman then slammed the door on Alton with two shutout innings of relief with two strikeouts and no walks.

TALLEY, WHO STARTED the game, was able to go five strong innings in the intense heat. He struck out five while allowing only one unearned run and no walks.

The Junior Triplets had a much less dramatic pairing with Bethalto on Sunday, as they earned a 13-3 victory.

Steve Geske secured the win with three innings pitched, with quite a bit of help from the Tri City bats. Geske allowed two runs during his time on the mound, but was buoyed by back-to-back three-run innings in the first and second.

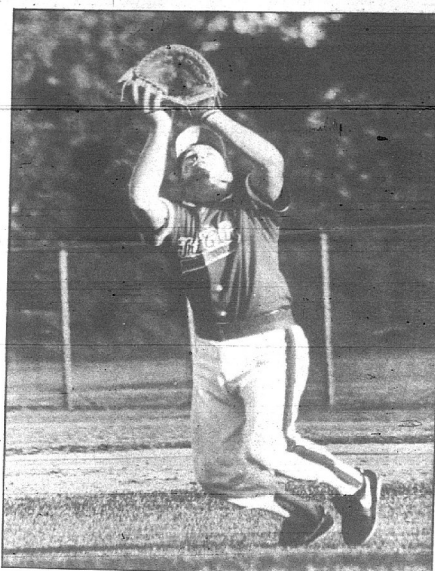

Greg Sturdivant led the Junior Triplets' attack in the first with a double. Brian Lloyd singled and the runners were driven in on a double from catcher Scott Nemeth. Talley was then driven in by a single off of the bat of Talley.

The second-inning rally was begun on a double by Brian Ehterton. Sturdivant reached on an error, and the pair were driven in by Lloyd on a two-run single.

MATT KRAUSE relieved Geske in the fourth, and pitched three innings. He allowed only two hits, no runs and struck out four.

McKeehan said he feels the Junior Triplets' success over the weekend could be translated into a strong showing in the playoffs, which begin Thursday.

"We needed to be at our best to come away with the victories we earned this weekend, and that's what we were," McKeehan said. "It was almost perfect."

Benefit basketball camp at West to honor memory of Milton Wiley

By Scott Marlon
Staff writer

The friends of Milton Wiley are honoring his memory in a most appropriate way.

Wiley, a former basketball standout at Belleville West High School, Michigan State University and St. Louis University, died May 31 after a nine-year battle with cancer.

FROM AUG. 2-4, the Belleville West gym will be the site for the Milton Wiley Benefit Basketball Camp. The camp, which runs from 9-11:30 a.m., is for players entering fourth through ninth grades.

The cost is $25 per player ($15 for the second player in a family, $10 for the third), which includes a T-shirt, refreshments and prizes. All proceeds go to an educational trust fund for Wiley's daughters, Christy, 9, and Candice, 6.

"Joe was a friend and a truly great person," said Bill Schmidt, head basketball coach at West. "It was Dave Shannahan who approached us with the idea for the camp."

"He coached Milton in his freshman and sophomore years (at West). He thought to use the basketball talents of various people to help the Wiley family. The expenses they faced in Milton's fight against cancer were astronomical."

Shannahan, former head coach at West, O'Fallon, Waterloo and Belleville Area College, will be among the many instructors at the Wiley camp. The staff also includes:

— CURRENT COACHES Schmidt, Doug McCrary (Belleville East), Dave Deets (Althoff), Norm Tonjes (O'Fallon), Dennis Rueter (Gibault) and Bob Bone (Collinsville).

Former coaches Roger Mueller (West) and Jerry Turner (West).

Anthony Bonner, a St. Louis U. graduate now playing for the NBA's Sacramento Kings.

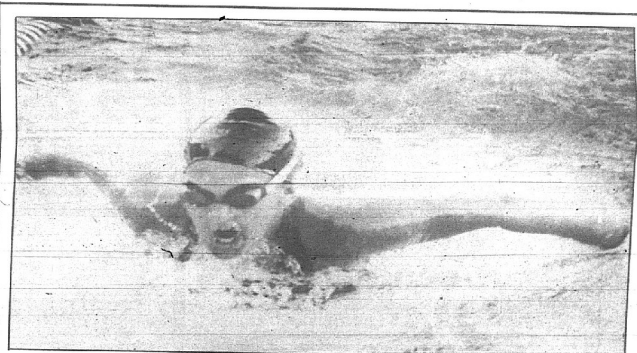

Joe Wiley, Milton's brother and a former coach at West and St. Louis U. Joe Wiley is regarded by many people as the best basketball player to come out of Belleville.

Rusty Lisch, a former star athlete at West who went on to play football (as a quarterback) at Notre Dame. He also played for the Chicago Bears and the St. Louis Cardinals in the NFL.

— Rich Herrin, head coach at SIU-Carbondale.

Dick Versace, former head coach of Bradley University and the NBA's Indiana Pacers. (He is currently a color commentator for basketball games on TNT and TBS.)

Ex-prep goalie lands job with St. Louis Vipers

By Grant Peters
Staff writer

A few weeks ago, Scott Bokal had a decision to make. Now he feels he made the right one.

AFTER BOKAL FOUND out he had been selected as one of the goaltenders for the Roller Hockey International's St. Louis Vipers, he knew he would have to surrender his status as an amateur.

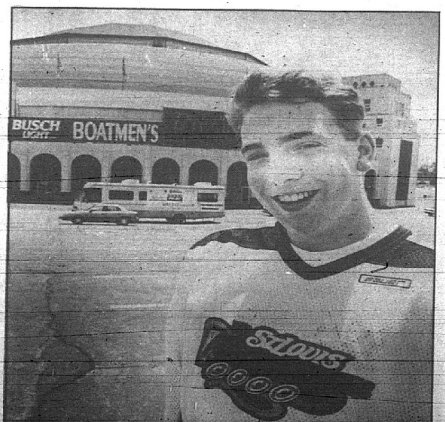

That meant no chance to play college ice hockey or for any junior team in the United States or Canada. But Bokal still feels he made the right choice.

"This has got to be one of the greatest summer jobs anybody could ever have," Bokal said. "It is hard work, but I'm having a lot of fun. I knew if I decided to play for the Vipers I'd lose my amateur status. But I wasn't going to live on a prayer any more."

Bokal has yet to appear in any games for the 2-1 Vipers, but he's chomping at the bit for a shot between the pipes.

"My focus is to stay patient and stay hungry," Bokal said. "You've just got to keep working hard and wait your turn. I'm 19 years old and playing a professional sport, so I'll happily wait for my chance."

BOKAL TRIED OUT for no reason other than to see if he could stack up to the competition. He'd played roller hockey before, but never goalie. "I just went out there to see how I would measure up, but I was absolutely terrible the first day," said Bokal, who appeared in four straight Mid-State Club Hockey Association championship games while playing for Dobson and Parkway Central. "But by the end of tryouts I was comfortable and I felt that I could be as good as anybody out there on any given day."

There aren't too many similarities between ice and roller hockey for a goalie. The equipment is basically the same, but the comparisons stop right there.

"You can't slide side-to-side with the in-line skates, and

PSG open men's team wins again

By Keith Farrell
Staff writer

The Southern men's open soccer team has created quite a winning tradition at the Prairie State Games. This year, the winning tradition continued.

The South went undefeated (3-0) en route to a gold medal. In its last 26 contests, the South squad is 25-0-1.

"THE SUCCESS IS the selection of players and dedication of our players from the south," said coach Mark Schwartzkopf. "Even though they have come from different respected high school programs and different college programs, they have a lot of respect for others. These players are excited to play with each other."

The men's team beat North Shore 4-2 in the medal round. It beat Blue Grey 4-2 and West Central 7-0 to advance to the finals.

Although the South more or less cakewalked to the finals with a blowout in the opening round and a "lackadaisical" second round game, Schwartzkopf said he could have a competitive team with any of the better players from the Metro-East.

"You can take the best players of the respected high school programs and be automatically good," Schwartzkopf said.

The player that stood out in Champaign — as he would just about on any soccer field — is Collinsville's Joe Reinger.

"I WOULD ARGUE with anybody that would say he isn't the best Metro East high school product since they have started soccer," Schwartzkopf said. "That's not saying other players are worse."

"With Joe and Simon (Weiss) being our two central midfielders, you can establish a good rhythm."

Despite winning the gold in somewhat of an easy fashion, Schwartzkopf said the team was one player short of having the team.

If Johnny Van Buskirk would have been the best Prairie State team ever," Schwartzkopf said.

Van Buskirk was an all-star from Granite City now playing for the University of Indiana.

Open women fall short in title game

By Keith Farrell
Staff writer

The Southern Region women's open soccer team's quest for the gold medal at the Prairie State Games came to a screeching halt as it lost 3-0 to North Shore in the finals.

It came down to the final game of the weekend, but North Shore claimed the gold as it got on the scoreboard first and early. That just proved to be too much for the South, which settled for the silver medal.

In pool play, both the Southern and North Shore teams were undefeated going into the finals. A lot of pressure was just against a very good team," said coach Chris Mitchell. Mitchell said the manner in which the first two goals were scored had an affect on the team.

"This was the first game of the weekend where we had to come back," Mitchell said. "They scored two early goals on quick restarts and that got us confused on defense. After that, it was hard coming back."

"I thought our girls did fine after the quick restarts. But that third goal killed us. We were out of gas then."

Southern goalie Kathy Klope recorded two shutouts (1-0 over Pioneer and 4-0 over Blue-Gray in the Games.

Mitchell also said that Deana

Wallace, Terry Schuler and Jamie Casillas had strong weekends.

This is Mitchell's first season as coach after being an assistant coach last season and being part of a team that got third last year.

"I liked it (this year)," Mitchell said. "We had a different approach, whereas I don't do much coaching and let things happen out on the field. They've been playing together for years and work well together."

"We were more competitive this year than we have been in a while."

The Southern Region beat Windy City 3-2 in its other win.

Tri-City Speedway raises $2,000 for flood victims

By Steve Birmingham
Correspondent

Victims of the disastrous flooding on the Mississippi River in Missouri and Illinois got a little relief Saturday, thanks to the efforts of Midwest racing fans.

The effort, called Tri-City Speedway Fans for Flood Relief, drawing that raised $2,000. And Asa Hovis, of St. Peters, Mo., won the initial drawing on a ticket he bought at his niece's urging.

"It's pretty flooded," Hovis said of his hometown. "I'm going to take my little niece out because she's the one I took the ticket out for."

Tri-City promoter Bobby Wente put the relief plan into action with the help of the St. Louis area's Hooters restaurants. "We're the fortunate people," Wente said. "We're not packing our belongings and finding a place to live tonight or thinking about our future. So, what we'd program, is start Tri-City Speedway Fans for Flood Relief. With the Hooters Restaurants in Westport and Union Station, we'll have a drawing tonight and next week during the World of Outlaws races until we get this thing under control."

Proceeds from the drawings will go to the American Red Cross. Fans wishing to contribute can send donations to Tri-City Fans for Flood Relief, P.O. box 6024, St. Charles, Mo. 63309.

According to officials, the Mississippi has flooded 276,000 acres, or 432 square miles, along a 200-mile strip of flood plain. The area stretches south from Hannibal, Mo., to Cape Girardeau, Mo. Missouri and Illinois farm levees have been breached or topped, flooding fields those levees were to protect.

Eight more inches of rain hit Kansas City, Mo., and has sent the Missouri River over its banks, flooding towns along the river, including St. Peters and St. Charles, Mo. The flooding has also hit Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wisconsin. President Bill Clinton has declared flooded portions of Illinois, Iowa and Missouri major disaster areas.

In Saturday's Clark Oil Racing Series action at Tri-City, Todd Bishop won his eighth feature in the 360 Sprint division, topping Jeff Galas, Butch Nutaut, Tommy Scott and Al Wissmiller.

Scott returned in the second 360 main to capture his seventh main event of 1993. Scott disappeared from the view of second-place finisher Bishop; Nutaut was third, followed by Chuck Schlosser and Tommy Mikels.

Jim Durbin topped the field in the Allied Auto Racing Association Modified main. He was chased across the stripe by Marc McClintock, Dave Boston, Tim Ratajczyk and Mike Hammarie. Boston and Ratajczyk won heats while "Dandy" Don Klein won the dash.

Limited Sportsman action saw Bobby Bittle claim his seventh feature win over Bob Martintoni, Bill Masters, Henry Holzworth and Mike Sonderman. Bittle and Stu Springer won heats with Holzworth taking the dash.

Bill Scott swept the Pro Stocks, winning his heat dash and feature. John Stanton took the second heat, Wayne Downing duplicated the feat in the Street Stocks, with Peggy Baur winning the other heat.

The World of Outlaws are preparing for a "Shootout" Saturday night at Tri-City Speedway. The King of the Outlaws, Steve Kinser, was beaten one-on-one by Kenny Jacobs the last time the Outlaws showed up on the fast half-mile. Dave Blaney continues to lead the 1993 Copehagen/Skunk Shootout Championship with a slim margin over Steve Kinser, Stevie Smith and Kenny Jacobs.

Advanced reserved seats are available by calling Racetrack at (314) 469-9666 or Wente Enterprises at (314) 947-2887. General admission will be sold at the Speedway on race day. Adults: $20. Children under 12: $10. Spectator gates will open at 4 p.m. with time trials at 7 p.m. and racing at 8 p.m.

SIUE holds workshop for soccer coaches

A few spaces remain in workshops this summer at SIUE-Edwardsville preparing persons for the Illinois Senior Soccer Association "C" coaching license. The workshop will be held twice—July 17 and Aug. 14. Individuals may choose to attend either session.

Ed Huneke, head soccer coach at SIUE, will conduct the course. Huneke has 17 years of coaching experience. As a national "A" license coach, he will provide curriculum in accordance with national and state coaching rules and procedures. The Illinois State Soccer Association is the state governing association of the U.S. Soccer Federation. Participants satisfactorily completing the course will receive a state "C" coaching license. It is mandatory that all club coaches be licensed. This license satisfies the licensing requirements for both Missouri and Illinois.

The course is designed for those who wish to develop a basic understanding and knowledge about coaching youth soccer teams. Physical participation is not mandatory, but is suggested. Both sessions of the workshop meet from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 2003 of the Vadalabene Center. Registration is $40. Call 682-3216 for more information.

that's about 75 percent of the battle on the ice," Bokal said. "The key in this league is the ability to overcompensate, and the ability to outthink and outsmart the shooter."

THAT CAN BE dangerous considering the puck is twice as light and Bokal feels it is moving three times as fast.

But Bokal feels it's all worth it, especially being able to play alongside former St. Louis blues players Perry Turnbull and Rick Wilson. And having Bernie Fedorko, one of the best Blues of all time, as the head coach definitely doesn't hurt a young player.

"It's pretty awesome to play with these guys," Bokal said. "Just look around; these guys were my heroes when I was younger, so I obviously just keep my mouth shut and do what I'm told. This is their team, and that's the bottom line."

At last night's game, Bokal wasn't sure just how much money he was making, but he really doesn't care. "The experience is definitely worth more than the paycheck," Bokal said. "I'm glad I decided to take this route, and hopefully I'll be able to contribute and help this team win some games."

Response to Journals' Grand Tours overwhelming

As soon as readers learned that local radio personality Anne Keefe will host the Journals' Grand Tours, many people began to send in advance reservations. The response has been so overwhelming, in fact, that reservations already have been received for all of the Grand Tours next year, and for those in 1995.

Descriptive brochures are not available yet, but deposits from readers who want to be guaranteed accommodations continue to come into Tenholder Travel.

The tour editor is concerned that the tours may be sold out before brochures are available. To avoid disappointment, readers are encouraged to take advantage of the early reservations application which permits reservations before the official books are open and brochures are available.

Early reservations guarantee space on the tour but permit the applicant to cancel without penalty at any time prior to when the tour's descriptive brochure is available and regular reservations are being taken. At that time the normal deposit requirements and cancellation penalties go into effect.

In 1994 the Journal Grand Tours will include the Grand Hawaii Tour in February, Grand Alaska Tour in July, the Grand Cruise to Scandinavia and Great Britain in August, and the Grand Greek Isles Cruise in October.

In 1995 Grand Tours to Australia and New Zealand in February and the Grand Alaska Tour/Cruise in July have been scheduled. The Grand Alaska Tour and the Fall Oktoberfest Tour for this year were sold out for months although the waiting list still is open.

The Grand Tours include every necessary expense and some grand entertainment and extra features on a deluxe basis. These ingredients are blended together into unforgettable travel experiences which build into a volume of pleasant memories which will last a lifetime. While the initial cost may seem high at first glance, there are no hidden extra costs or unpleasant surprises along the route.

Also available this winter is the Journal-sponsored "Christmas in Hawaii" tour, which departs via TWA on Christmas Eve and returns New Year's Day. Staying at deluxe Sheraton Hotels on the two fabulous beaches of Kaaanapala on Maui and Waikiki on Oahu, this one-week vacation offers an ideal escape to the warm Pacific Ocean and the Hawaiian Islands during a great family travel time. Christmas in Hawaii brochures are available and have been mailed to those who requested them.

Readers interested in Christmas in Hawaii or any of the Grand Tours may call their local Vista World Travel Independent Agent or Tenholder Travel. For the name of the Vista World Travel Agent in your area, or a brochure on any of the Grand Tours, call Tenholder Travel at 894-5555 in St. Louis or toll-free at 1-800-333-5910. Brochures will be sent as they become available.

MAMMOGRAPHY.

A mammogram is a low-dose x-ray examination that helps physicians "see" breast cancer before there's a lump --- when cure rates are highest.

Memorial's Mammography Center provides screening mammograms for $61 (includes interpretation by board-certified radiologists) performed by skilled personnel using state-of-the-art low-dose equipment accredited by the American College of Radiology.

At Memorial's Mammography Center, you also can have added benefits not available with screening mammograms performed in mobile vans. Screening mammograms at Memorial are performed in a specially-designed facility with your needs in mind - privacy, comfort and convenience.

Appointments are scheduled at your convenience. You don't have to wait until a mobile van makes a brief stop on a local parking lot to have this important examination performed.

A small price to pay for a lot of peace of mind - and with your special needs taken into consideration.

For an appointment or more information about this cost-effective, life-saving exam, call Memorial's Mammography Center at 233-7750, extension 5065.
